Looking Ahead to 2015:

THE POSTAL SERVICE PROMOTES GOODWILL ON THE NY STOCK EXCHANGE

The US Postal Service rang the opening bell on Wall Street today, Monday, December 22nd to celebrate our strong holiday season and to highlight the special work of New York City's Operation Santa program, which connects generous volunteers to needy families identified through children's letters to Santa Claus.

Joining the event at the podium were executives from the Postal Service's Northeast Area and New York District, a trio of letter carriers and a postal sales associate representing the top sales-lead generators in the region and Rudolph The Red Nosed Reindeer, fresh from an appearance on this year's Postal Service Holiday Stamps.

What a great way to ring in our final days of 2014 and to look ahead to more success with you in 2015. We appreciate working together with you. Please accept our wishes for a bright holiday and may the New Year bring continued success to you.
